the town and destroyed every building in it early yesterday. No loss of life was reported.

The cloudburst struck Santa Tereza, a village in the foothills, two miles west of Hatch, destroying all but one building, the water then rushing down the arroyo into Hatch, a town of 500 inhabitants.

Today from three to seven feet of water lies in the stricken village. Officials of the United States Reclamation Service sald there was no way to drain the water off except to dig a deep canal, as the town lies in a basin, below the level of the arroyo.

Farmers, armed with shotguns, last night guarded the bank of the Rio Grande south of here to prevent raising of the flood gates. The farmers insisted that raising of the gates would ruin their crops without being of material benefit to the flooded district.
